

ABSTRACT

[0041] A system and method for arranging travel includes receiving travel information from a several consumers and grouping them according to common travel requirements, contacting several service providers, and negotiating a group discount with at least one service provider as a function of the grouping. The system and method further includes booking the grouping with the service provider.